

Jules, 34

For all the times you stayed up to listen, showed up early to help, and remembered the tiny details – here's to a year that gives that same kindness back.

– Rosa

New constellation for 34: Jules Major. Easily spotted by the trail of half-finished books, excellent playlists, and people laughing nearby.

– Eli

Happy birthday, Jules! I still laugh about the night you confidently pointed the telescope at Saturn and discovered the neighbor's porch light. May 34 bring better coordinates and even better adventures.

– Mina

– Mina

– Theo

To the person who turns every ordinary evening into an expedition: may your next orbit be full of curious detours, late-night cake, and friends who always bring a blanket.

– Theo

Your cardboard-rocket engineering remains wildly underappreciated. Thanks for making room for silliness, big ideas, and one more photo before the candles go out.

– Anika

– Anika

Clear skies, warm
lights, and no alarm
clocks tomorrow.

Happy birthday from your favorite amateur astronomers!

— The North Roof
Club